

SMALL WONDERS

the look

While we'd all love a cavernous bathroom to work with, in reality most of us are dealing with a much smaller footprint. This space by Melbourne-based interior designer Lucy Bock is minimalist and refined without compromising on style. The muted sage green palette, soft grey marble floors and statement Artemide wall lights all lend a luxe touch, with plenty of room to breathe.

photography fiona storey | design lucy bock

1

This room utilises two simple design tricks for making a space feel larger: tiling to the ceiling and hanging a mirror. The frameless shower achieves a similar result.

2

Wall-mounting taps can save precious vanity space. It also means you can opt for a narrower sink, which then adds to your available floor space.

3

Storage is essential for keeping your space clutter-free. Cupboards under the vanity and a mirrored cabinet help hide bathroom essentials out of sight. →